

Witch brew

Pickle is gnawing on a very hard twig. It just doesn't want to break down like he wants to. Maybe if he makes it wet it might be easier, like that time he put paper in his water bowl. With the twig in his beak he climbs to his water bowl. There he drops the twig in the water and started moving it. Mix, mix, hey this is fun. The water is splashing about, making Pickle wet.

But the water is a very boring color. Let's change that, thinks Pickle and he flies to the bottom of his home where he grabs a piece of red paper. Back at the bowl he drops it in the water. He does this with some blocks, more twigs and another piece of paper, this time blue.

Mix, mix, Pickle goes with the longest twig. The water is now turning purple because of the red and blue paper. He stares in the water, it looks beautiful. Like a witch brew.

"Pickle! What did you do?" he hears Flora. She takes away the water bowl and when it comes back it is boring water again. Pickle stares at the boring water. He wants witch brew. So, of he flies off to gather a piece of green paper and do it all over again.
